

the foundation

The Pitt Legal Income Sharing Foundation, PLISF, is a student-run non-profit organization at the University of Pittsburgh School of Law which is dedicated to helping students finance their summer public interest legal internships. PLISF carries out this mission by sponsoring fundraising events throughout the year, such as the 24th Annual Auction, and distributing the proceeds as grants to first- and second-year law students.

In past years, grants have been given to students working at various organizations, including national civil rights organizations, public defenders, attorneys general and nonprofits.

Because PLISF is a tax-exempt charitable 501(c)(3) organization, all donations are tax-deductible. For more information, please contact Kevin Tucker at 412-648-3308.

why donate

As leaders in the community, it is our duty not only to serve our clients, but the neighborhoods in which we live and work. Your generous donation will support future public service leaders by funding grants which enable law students to dedicate their time and energy this summer to public service and the pursuit of justice.

how can you support PLISF

In addition to financial sponsorship, there are several tax-deductible ways to support PLISF's 24th Annual Auction. We also encourage the donation of items, services, or other special opportunities for the Auction. The Sponsorship Levels are applicable to in-kind donations based on their estimated value.
